ENGLISH SCHOOLS AND IRISH
STUDENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.
Sir.—It is estimated that more than 2,000 Irish students came home for their holidays last week from English schools. This is only a fraction of the whole. Practically all of these attend higher class schools and colleges in England, whose pensions range from £50 to for ansum. At the lowest estimate, Irish schools lose upwards of £100,000 per ansums through this emigration of Irish students. Why do Irish parents think it an advantage to send

THE IRISH PROBLEM.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.
Sia,—If rumour be correct, the fate of Ireland is once more in the melting pot. A round table conference has been summoned, and it would be well that those taking part in it should be able to come quickly to terms. All are agreed that one assembly should, if possible, control the destinues of Ulster and the remainder of Ireland, but how are such warring elements to become fused into one legislative whole? Truth must emerge in any real consideration of the problem, and I must be pardoned if I state plainly the real bugbear to all Unionist minds regarding Home Rule. They fear, and I believe rightly, the influence that he great civil and religious organisation commonly called the Roman Catholic Church would be delicated. This may be true, but in practical days something more than mere assurance is required. Guarantees can be given, and I would suggest two, either of which would. I believe, satisfy the most timorous Unionists. The first would be effected by doubling the number of Roman Catholic and non-Roman Catholic representatives. In other words, a constituency with, say, two representatives could not return an equal number of Roman Catholic and non-Roman Catholic representatives. A Coroner's inquiry into the death on the brighton railway on Saturday night of Eleanor iladys Purvey, 21, of Bow, was opened at Gladys Furvey, 21, of now, was opened at Croydon yesterday.

Mrs. Furvey said that her daughter left home on Saturday to spend the Christmas with her uncle at Croydon. She was not an excitable girl. She had corresponded with a young man in Mesopotamia. On leaving the witness chair Mrs. Purvey exclaimed that something must have happened, as her daughter would not have thrown herself out of the train for nothing.

would not have thrown herself out of the train of for nothing.

Dr. Genge, police surgeon, after describing it the deceased girl's injuries, said the whole of face had an aspect of great horror. Death was instantaneous, and was consistent with falling from a moving train. Witness spoke to examining John Percy Batty, a clark, of Tadworth, Surrey, who was detained by the police in connection with the affair, and subsequently released. A careful examination of his hands, two little knives, and a pair of scissors, which were in his possession was made, but witness found no signs of blood. Batty had no scratches or abrasions, and was certainly not scrited. The man's clothing was not disturbed, and there were no signs of a struggle—upthing whatever to create suspicion.

The Coroner—If this man had thrown the poor girl out of the window you would have expected may be yours though you feel out-of-sorts and depressed to-day. Many people suffer at times from dull depressed feelings and lack of energy, when it is difficult to maintain interest in either work or pleasure. A sluggish liver frequently gives rise to the trouble and the sooner it is corrected the sooner the individual will be himself again. The stomach and bowels are also liable to get upset from many unavoidable causes. Overwork, anxiety, late hours, irregular meals, unsuitable diet; all these act prejudicially upon the digestive system. The best thing to do upon the first sign of indisposition is to take a course of Beecham's Pills, the world famous tonic-aperient and corrective. This medicine acts directly upon the disturbed organs, and assists Nature in restoring natural healthy conditions. You will feel every a much better this well tried and deservedly popular remedy, the use of which can be safely recommended at all times for the prompt relief and cure of the numerous ailments which arise from irregularities of the digestive system. It is unwise to disregard even trifling ailments, as they may seem, for such may develop into more serious illness. There is nothing better for regulating the system than Beecham's Pills, the periodical use of which will be found of the greatest value for keeping the stomach healthy, the bowels regular, and the liver active, thereby ensuring good
